TIME TO TALK?

You can put lipstick on a pig, dress it up but in the end it's still a pig.

The tech ops shop committee does not condone and does not agree with the latest attempt from the company. The company has a right to talk to its employees, they do not have the right to ask for representatives from various work locations to "represent". Divide and conquer, one of the many tactics described in Martin Jay Levitt's book "Confessions of a Union Buster".

The company is aware you are ticked at the loss of wages, time clocks and lack of respect. They know you don't have the proper tooling and parts required to do your job. What else is there to talk about? What can they provide you?

Please guide yourselves accordingly.

In Solidarity
